

I'm opposing the Consumer Bankers Association request to be able to contact members at anytime. Many of us are already members to many of these banks. That tells me that they're obviously trying to sell us something. I enjoy being able to have a peaceful dinner with my family and with a newborn, I don't need calls waking her up. They already have websites & other means of advertising and I don't see how calling and harassing their members would be beneficial to them.
